	CLASSIFICATION SEPONDAL CONFERENCE
COUNTRY	Polish-occurise Hermany REPORT
ropic	roops and Vilitary I stallations in the Goldar-Kowahlen Area
EVALUATIO	N PLACE OBTAINED
DATE OF	CONTENT.
DATE OBT	30.4 13.3053
REFEREN(
PAGES
REMARKS	Difference of the contract of
	DO NOT CIRCULATE
American programme
X 1	Coldar. 1. A detail of about 40 border guard troops was billeted in a three-story brick building on the northern perimeter of Coldap (R 55/V 82) up to January 1951. The building was located in the fork formed by the intersection of the
K1	1. A detail of about 40 border guard troops was billeted in a three-story brick building on the northern perimeter of Goldap (R 55/V 82) up to January 1951. The building was located in the fork formed by the intersection of the roads leading from Goldap to Darkehmen (R 55/V 63) and Gumbinnen (Q 53/K 10), respectively. A wooden observation platform on the roof of the building was occupied by a sentry at all times. The detail was assigned to duty along the Polish-Soviet border in the area north of Goldap, the lorder patrols numbering only a few men. There were wooden watchtowers on the Goviet side of the border. The detail maintained contact with another Polish border guard detail in Kowahlen (E 55/V 90). Border guard troops were greenish-brown uniforms, puttees and laced shoes. Collar patches and cap ribbons were green. While moving around the area of the town, border
K1	1. A detail of about 40 border guard troops was billeted in a three-story brick building on the northern perimeter of Goldap (R 55/V 82) up to January 1951. The building was located in the fork formed by the intersection of the roads leading from Goldap to Darkehmen (R 55/V 63) and Gumbinnen (Q 53/K 10), respectively. A wooden observation platform on the roof of the building was occupied by a sentry at all times. The detail was assigned to duty along the Polish-Soviet border in the area north of Goldap, the Forder patrols numbering only a few men. There were wooden watchtowers on the Soviet side of the border. The detail maintained contact with another Polish border guard detail in Kowahlen (£ 55/V 90). Border guard troops were greenish-brown uniforms, puttees and laced shoes. Collar patches and cap ribbons were green. While moving around the area of the town, border guard troops were armed only with gistols. Then on patrol duty, they carried submachine guns, either with worden stocks and drum magazines, or all-metal with clip magazines. No motor vehicles were observed with the detail. 2. The UB (Security Police) office for the county of Goldap was located on
(1	1. A detail of about 10 border guard troops was billeted in a three-story brick building on the northern perimeter of Goldap (R 55/V 82) up to January 1951. The huilding was located in the fork formed by the intersection of the roads leading from Goldap to Darkehmen (R 55/V 63) and Gumbinnen (Q 53/K 10), respectively. A wooden observation platform on the roof of the building was occupied by a sentry at all times. The detail was assigned to duty along the Polish-Soviet border in the area north of Goldap, the lorder patrols numbering only a few men. There were wooden watchtowers on the Soviet side of the border. The detail maintained contact with another Polish border guard detail in Kowahlen (£ 55/V 90). Border guard troops were greenish-brown uniforms, puttees and laced shoes. Collar patches and cap ribbons were green. While moving around the area of the town, border guard troops were armed only with gistols. Then on patrol duty, they carried subrachine guns, either with wooden stocks and drum magazines, or all-metal with clip magazines. No motor vehicles were observed with the detail. 2. The UB (Security Police) office for the county of Goldap was located on the north side of what was formorly Elumenstrasse, running west from the market-place. The office was staffed by a maximum of 20 persons. 3. The FO (Wilitia) office for the town of Goldap was in the workers quarters
(1	1. A detail of about 10 border guard troops was billeted in a three-story brick building on the northern perimeter of Goldap (R 55/V 82) up to January 1951. The building was located in the fork formed by the intersection of the roads leading from Goldap to Darkehmen (R 55/V 63) and Gumbinnen (Q 53/K 10), respectively. A wooden observation platform on the roof of the building was occupied by a sentry at all times. The detail was assigned to duty along the Polish-Soviet border in the area north of Goldap, the lorder patrols numbering only a few men. There were wooden watchtowers on the Soviet side of the border. The detail maintained contact with another Polish border guard detail in Kowahlen (S 55/V 90). Border guard troops were greenish-brown uniforms, puttees and laced shoes. Collar patches and cap ribbons were green. While moving around the area of the town, border guard troops were armed only with gistols. Then on patrol duty, they carried subrachine guns, either with wooden stocks and drum magazines, or all-metal with clip magazines. No motor vehicles were observed with the detail. 2. The UB (Security Police) office for the county of Goldap was located on the north side of what was formorly Bluronstrasse, running west from the market-place. The office was staffed by a maximum of 20 persons.
X1 X1	1. A detail of about 40 border guard troops was billeted in a three-story brick building on the northern perimeter of Goldap (R 55/V 82) up to January 1951. The building was located in the fork formed by the intersection of the roads leading from Goldap to Darkehmen (R 55/V 63) and Cumbinnen (Q 53/K 10), respectively. A wooden observation platform on the roof of the building was occupied by a sentry at all times. The detail was assigned to duty along the Polish-Soviet border in the area north of Golday, the Forder patrols numbering only a few men. There were wooden watchtowers on the Soviet side of the border. The detail maintained contact with another Polish border guard detail in Kowahlen (£ 55/V 90). Border guard troops were greenish-brown uniforms, puttees and laced shees. Collar patches and cap ribbons were green. While moving around the area of the town, border guard troops were armed only with mistols. Then on patrol duty, they carried submachine guas, either with worden stocks and drum magazines, or all-metal with clip magazines. No motor vehicles were observed with the detail. 2. The UB (Security Police) office for the county of Goldap was located on the north side of what was formarly Blumerstrasse, running west from the market-place. The office was staffed by a maximum of 20 persons. 3. The MO ("ilitia) office for the town of Goldap was in the workers quarters of a former mill, south of the market-place, on the east side of the south-bound main street. It was staffed by five to ten militiamen who were
X1 X1	1. A dotail of about 40 border guard troops was billeted in a three-story brick building on the northern perimeter of Goldap (R 55/V 82) up to January 1951. The building was located in the fork formed by the intersection of the roads leading from Goldap to Darkehmen (R 55/V 63) and Gumbinnen (Q 53/K 10), respectively. A wooden observation platform on the roof of the building was occupied by a sentry at all times. The detail was assigned to duty along the Polish-Soviet border in the area north of Goldar, the lorder patrols numbering only a few men. There were wooden watchtowers on the Soviet side of the border. The detail maintained contact with another Polish border guard detail in Kowahlen ($ 55/V 90). Border guard troops were greenish-brown uniforms, puttees and laced shoes. Collar patches and cap ribbons were green. While moving around the area of the town, border guard troops were armed only with ristols. Then on patrol duty, they carried surrachine guns, either with worden stocks and drum magazines, or all-metal with clip magazines. No motor vehicles were observed with the detail. 2. The UB (Security Police) office for the county of Goldap was located on the north side of what was formally Bluronstrasse, running west from the market-place. The office was staffed by a maximum of 20 orcons. 3. The MO ("ilitia) office for the town of Goldap was in the workers' quarters of a former mill, south of the market-place, on the east side of the south-bound main street. It was staffed by five to ten militiamen who were blue-prat uniforms. 4. The former Cerman Panserjaeger Kaserne (AT Artillery Barracks), which was constructed prior to borld War II, was located on the vestern perimeter of the town and could be reached via Blumenstrasse. The installation includ-
X1 X1	1. A dotail of about 40 border guard troops was billeted in a three-story brick building on the northern perimeter of Goldap (R 55/V 82) up to January 1951. The building was located in the fork formed by the intersection of the roads leading from Goldap to Darkehmen (R 55/V 63) and Gumbinnen (Q 53/K 10), respectively. A wooden observation platform on the roof of the building was occupied by a sentry at all times. The detail was assigned to duty along the Polish-Soviet border in the area north of Goldar, the lorder patrols numbering only a few men. There were wooden watchtowers on the Soviet side of the border. The detail maintained contact with another Polish border guard detail in Kowahlen ($ 55/V 90). Border guard troops were greenish-brown uniforms, puttees and laced shoes. Collar patches and cap ribbons were green. While moving around the area of the town, border guard troops were armed only with ristols. Then on patrol duty, they carried surrachine guns, either with worden stocks and drum magazines, or all-metal with clip magazines. No motor vehicles were observed with the detail. 2. The UB (Security Police) office for the county of Goldap was located on the north side of what was formally Bluronstrasse, running west from the market-place. The office was staffed by a maximum of 20 orcons. 3. The MO ("ilitia) office for the town of Goldap was in the workers' quarters of a former mill, south of the market-place, on the east side of the south-bound main street. It was staffed by five to ten militiamen who were blue-prat uniforms. 4. The former Cerman Panserjaeger Kaserne (AT Artillery Barracks), which was constructed prior to borld War II, was located on the vestern perimeter of the town and could be reached via Blumenstrasse. The installation includ-

of the buildings were damaged during the war, After the war, the installation was stripped of its interior equipment. Reconditioning was started about the beginning of 19h9, with the installation being under guard since that time. The roofs were being repaired with sheet retal and the windows gradually installed or boarded up. However, no troops had moved in by the end of 1950,

- 5. The former German Infanterie Kaserne was located southwest of the old market-place. It consisted of six multi-story buildings. The installation, which was constructed prior to World War I and quartered an infantry battalion at that time, was damaged during World War II. Repairs by civilian worken were started about the beginning of 1949. Towever, most windows were still Woarded up in the fall of 1950. The installation was protected by civilian guards. There were no indications of an early reoccupation.
- 6. The former German Ulanen Kaserne, constructed prior to World War I, was located on the eastern perimeter of the town, on the south side of the road leading to Joerkischken (S 55/V 82). It consisted of two large brick buildings, the former riding hall having burned down. In early 1951, the barracks installation was empty and unguarded. No reconditioning work was observed.
- 7. Except for the border guard detail, mentioned in paragraph 1, no military whits were stationed in Goldap in late 1950. No Soviet troops were observed.

Kowahlen.

- 8. A border guard unit of 80 to 100 troops was stationed in Kowahlen up to January 1951. This unit alledgedly was the superior headquarters of the border guard detail in Goldap. It guarded the border in the southern portion of Rominten Heath. The unit was billeted in a three-story former private building, northeast of the railroad station, between the railroad line and the road leading to Goldap. Post of the troops were equipped with submachine guns; some were armed with rifles. No motor vehicles were observed.
- 9. An infantry company of young soldiers was billeted north of the quarters of the horder guard troops. The troops were observed to be armed only with small arms. No special equipment was noted. The troops were brown uniforms with equalets to match, and round vizor-type service caps with red ribbons. They drilled and received field training and training in firing.
- 10. A mine-clearing detail of about 50 Polish Army soldiers was employed in the Goldap-Kowahlen area up to late 1950°

